Do you have a name with characters that don't exist in regular English language? It is difficult to fill out official forms when your first or last name has a special character, like in Nuñez, or in Bjørgen. In those cases, go to the information page of your passport. At the bottom you will find the machine readable zone, where your last name will be spelled in regular characters, and will be separated from your first name by <<. This is how you should spell your name in oficial forms.
